Editorial Review Workbook

Phase 2B-1 - Owner Review Package

Prepared for Stephanie

58 review decisions - 15 high priority
Documentation only - no website changes

PRINT EDITION - JULY 25, 2026

How to Use This Workbook

This workbook helps Stephanie make every editorial decision herself. It identifies wording that deserves attention but does not provide replacement copy.

Review sequence

- 1. Read the editorial governance handbook.
- 2. Work through the 15 high-priority recommendations first.
- 3. For each recommendation, mark Keep as-is, Revise later, Remove later, or Discuss.
- 4. Add Stephanie's own wording or decision notes by hand.
- 5. Sign the owner approval page before any implementation phase begins.

High 15 items	Medium 31 items	Low 12 items
-------------------------	---------------------------	------------------------

Review boundaries

This package does not review legal or privacy language, plum-jam preservation instructions, authorship assignments, publication-date changes, metadata, structured data, or website code.

A recommendation is not an instruction to edit. No public change should be made until Stephanie records and approves her decision.

Editorial Governance Handbook

Purpose

This handbook governs future editorial work. It does not authorize changes by itself. Public copy changes require owner approval, and personal details must remain truthful to Stephanie's experience.

Brand Voice

- Use first person whenever the statement is truthfully Stephanie's.
- Keep the voice warm, practical, personal, specific, family-centered, and calmly confident.
- Prefer concrete observations and lived details over broad lifestyle language.
- Preserve uncertainty when Stephanie is still learning or experimenting.
- Avoid generic AI language, inflated claims, repeated slogans, unsupported superlatives, and invented emotion.
- Never invent personal stories, family details, expertise, testing, results, or endorsements.

Seasonal Writing

Evergreen guidance

Evergreen guidance remains useful without a current date. It may describe general growing principles, techniques, or seasonal patterns, but should state the region, climate, or growing-zone limits whenever timing varies by place.

Seasonal guidance

Seasonal guidance tells readers what is timely during a defined window. It must identify the applicable region or zone and display a seasonal review date. Phrases such as "right now," "this week," "today," "current," "peak now," and "coming soon" may be used only when:

1. the statement is true on the publication date;
2. the relevant place or climate is clear;
3. a visible review or expiration date is present; and
4. an owner is responsible for reviewing or retiring it.

Journal entries

Journal entries preserve a dated moment in the garden or home. They should display their publication date and may retain time-specific observations because the date supplies context. They should not be silently presented as current guidance later.

Aging and expiration

- Seasonal modules need an owner, a visible seasonal review date, and a defined expiration or replacement date.
- When a review date passes, remove the "current" presentation, replace the claim with approved evergreen guidance, or publish a newly reviewed seasonal entry.
- "Coming soon" statements expire on their stated target date. If no target date exists, review them within 30 days.
- Undated "current" claims should not remain live.

Publication Dates

Published

The date when an editorial page or entry first becomes public. Preserve it when later revisions occur.

Updated

The date of a meaningful editorial revision that changes reader-facing substance, accuracy, instructions, recommendations, or scope. Minor punctuation and formatting corrections do not qualify.

Seasonal Review

The date on which an owner checked a seasonal claim against the stated region, zone, or season. It is separate from Published and Updated.

dateModified

Use dateModified only when a meaningful editorial change is publicly released. Its value must agree with the visible Updated date when one is shown.

Technical fixes-including accessibility, performance, redirects, markup repair, image optimization, and code-only changes-do not count as editorial updates and must not advance visible editorial dates or dateModified.

Authorship

- Preserve current authorship exactly as it exists until the owners approve a separate authorship decision.
- Do not assign new authors, infer an author, or convert organizational attribution to a person.
- Do not add reviewer credits, credentials, or endorsements without documented approval from that person.
- Future personal copy must be confirmed by Stephanie before publication.

Future Content

Recipes

- Record the source, test status, substitutions tested, and owner approval before publication.
- Keep ingredients, method, yield, visible claims, and structured data consistent.
- Distinguish editorial authorship from technical or safety review.

Guides

- Separate lived experience from general guidance.
- Identify region, climate, or zone when advice is not universal.
- Keep claims specific, supportable, and within the owner's experience.

Blog posts

- Treat posts as dated journal or editorial entries.
- Display Published and, when materially revised, Updated.
- Keep dated observations dated rather than presenting them as permanently current.

Collections

- Collection introductions and filters must describe the items actually present.
- Time-sensitive labels require the same region, review-date, and expiration controls as other seasonal modules.
- Do not imply freshness, testing, or completeness that has not been verified.

Newsletter

- Promise only the cadence and content the owners can consistently deliver.
- Seasonal claims in newsletter promotion need the same place and time context as website claims.
- Consent, privacy, account settings, and subscriber-data language remain governed by the separate privacy workflow.

Page-by-Page Review Worksheets

Each card preserves the current wording, explains why it deserves attention, and gives a direction for Stephanie's decision without proposing replacement copy.

Homepage - index.html

High - Freshness

Section: Seasonal Harvest

Current wording

"built around what is ripe right now" (index.html:1265)

Why it deserves review

"Right now" expires and has no visible region or review date.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Decide whether this module will be actively dated and maintained or made evergreen.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-002

Medium - Voice

Section: Our Story

Current wording

"has grown into a journey of learning, preserving, gathering, and sharing the beauty found in everyday life" (index.html:1224)

Why it deserves review

"Journey" and "beauty found in everyday life" are broad phrases that may be less distinctive than Stephanie's concrete voice.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Confirm whether these words sound natural to Stephanie; favor her specific experience if she elects to revise.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-003

Medium - Trust

Section: Latest Recipes

Current wording

"Every recipe starts in the garden." (index.html:1234)

Why it deserves review

"Every" is an absolute claim about the full recipe collection.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Verify the statement against every retained recipe or narrow the promise during owner editing.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-004

Low - Trust

Section: Responsible-use footer

Current wording

"Every mocktail on this site is just as good as the cocktail version." (index.html:1429)

Why it deserves review

The universal quality comparison is subjective and repeated across the site.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Confirm that Stephanie wants to make this promise globally.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

About - about.html

High - Trust

Section: What You'll Find Here

Current wording

"Every recipe includes a non-alcoholic version" (about.html:1152)

Why it deserves review

This is a site-wide completeness claim readers may rely on.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Verify every recipe before retaining the absolute promise.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-006

Medium - Voice

Section: Header

Current wording

"a journey toward slower living" (about.html:1119-1120)

Why it deserves review

The phrase is broad and may not be as personal as the first-person origin story below it.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Confirm whether the header sounds like Stephanie and reflects the actual purpose of the site.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-007

Medium - Trust

Section: Why I Started

Current wording

"The elderflower I almost ripped out was practically a spritz on its own." (about .html:1138)

Why it deserves review

This is a specific first-person memory and should be owner-confirmed.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Stephanie should confirm the event and decide whether this is how she would tell it.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-008

Medium - Trust

Section: What You'll Find Here

Current wording

"A zone-by-zone planting guide" (about .html:1159-1160)

Why it deserves review

The description promises comprehensive zone-specific coverage.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Compare the promise with the current planting guide's actual scope.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-009

Low - Clarity

Section: How Recipes Are Built

Current wording

"Every recipe on this site starts with the garden, not the spirit." (about .html:1179)

Why it deserves review

The absolute repeats the homepage promise and may blur editorial philosophy with a literal production claim.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Decide whether this is a philosophy statement or a verifiable rule, then review accordingly.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Harvest Hub - herb-hub.html

High - Trust

Section: FAQ - easiest herb

Current wording

"Mint is the easiest garden herb to grow - it's almost indestructible" and "always grow it in a container" (herb-hub.html:1411-1412)

Why it deserves review

"Easiest," "almost indestructible," and "always" are universal claims that vary by climate and conditions.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Have Stephanie verify the intended experience and decide what qualifications are necessary.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-011

Medium - Voice

Section: Header

Current wording

"Some things have become traditions. Others are still teaching us something new." (herb-hub.html:935)

Why it deserves review

The idea recurs across several pages and may sound like a generalized brand passage.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Confirm that the passage reflects Stephanie's natural phrasing and is needed here.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-012Medium - Trust*Section: FAQ - indoor growingCurrent wording

"Mint, basil, and lemon balm do best on a bright windowsill with at least 6 hours of light." (herb-hub.html:1415-1416)

Why it deserves review

Indoor success depends on window orientation, season, latitude, and supplemental light.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Verify the guidance and identify the conditions Stephanie can support.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-013Low - Trust*Section: FAQ - container yieldCurrent wording

"A half-dozen pots with different herbs will give you more than you can use." (herb-hub.html:1435-1436)

Why it deserves review

The outcome is not universal and may overpromise to beginners.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Confirm whether this matches Stephanie's experience or needs qualification.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Garden Tips - garden-tips.html

High - Freshness

Section: What's Growing Right Now

Current wording

"Late May Harvest Window"; "Updated for late May." (garden-tips.html:1313-1315)

Why it deserves review

The page is presenting a past seasonal snapshot as current.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Decide whether to date it as a journal snapshot or replace it with an actively governed seasonal module.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

High - Freshness

Section: Seasonal status cards

Current wording

"Peak now," "Blooming now," "Pick now," and "Coming soon" (garden-tips.html:1322-1387)

Why it deserves review

These statuses expire and do not state a region or review date.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Assign a region, owner, review date, and expiration process before retaining current-state labels.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

High - Freshness

Section: Hibiscus card

Current wording

"Plant now" (garden-tips.html:1421-1423)

Why it deserves review

Planting timing varies substantially by zone and the word "now" expires.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Require zone/place context and a visible seasonal review date.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

High - Trust

Section: Turn Extra Herbs into Syrup

Current wording

"It keeps for 2-3 weeks" (garden-tips.html:1476)

Why it deserves review

This is a storage claim presented without conditions or a cited review.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Route the claim through the appropriate recipe/storage review before owner approval.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-018

Medium - Trust

Section: Start with the Workhorses

Current wording

"Mint, basil, rosemary, and thyme are hard to kill" (garden-tips.html:1449)

Why it deserves review

The claim may mislead beginners in unsuitable climates or conditions.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Ask Stephanie which plants have actually been forgiving in her garden and under what conditions.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-019

Medium - Trust

Section: Plant Once, Harvest for Years

Current wording

"come back every year in most climates" (garden-tips.html:1494)

Why it deserves review

Winter survival varies by species, variety, zone, and drainage.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Verify and add the climate limits Stephanie wants the page to serve.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-020

Medium - Trust

Section: Harvest in the Morning

Current wording

"Herbs have the most essential oils - and the best flavor - in the morning" (garden-tips.html:1512)

Why it deserves review

This is a broad scientific and sensory claim across multiple herbs.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Verify the source and decide whether Stephanie's own observation should be distinguished from general guidance.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Recipes / Recipe Index - recipes.html

High - Freshness

Section: Header

Current wording

"rooted in what is growing right now" (recipes.html:767)

Why it deserves review

The collection is not visibly tied to a region or current review date.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Decide whether the header is evergreen or part of an actively maintained seasonal collection.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

High - Freshness

Section: Filter

Current wording

"In Season Now" (recipes.html:792)

Why it deserves review

The filter makes a current-state promise without explaining place, date, or maintenance.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Define the filter's season logic and visible context before retaining "Now."

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-023

Medium - Clarity

Section: Legend

Current wording

"Grow this yourself / in season" (recipes.html:847-849)

Why it deserves review

The slash combines two different meanings: growability and present seasonality.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Decide what the icon actually guarantees and label that single meaning clearly.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-024

Low - Clarity

Section: Sort control

Current wording

"Most Garden Ingredients" (recipes.html:828-834)

Why it deserves review

Readers may not know how "garden ingredients" are counted or ranked.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Define the intended measure before changing the label or behavior.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Mint Guide - mint-guide.html

High - Clarity

Section: Harvest guidance

Current wording

"Take up to a third at once," followed by "cut the whole plant back by about half" (mint-guide.html:2161-2162)

Why it deserves review

Two different limits appear together without explaining when each applies.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Ask Stephanie to identify the practice she follows and route technical guidance for verification.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-026

Medium - Trust

Section: Container rule

Current wording

"Always grow mint in a container. This is not optional." (mint-guide.html:2118-2121)

Why it deserves review

The absolute may not fit every managed landscape or growing method.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Confirm whether this is Stephanie's personal rule or intended universal guidance.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-027

Medium - Freshness

Section: At a glance

Current wording

"Peak harvest April-September" (mint-guide.html:2084-2089)

Why it deserves review

The range is location-dependent and lacks a region or zone.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Add owner-approved climate context during a future edit.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-028

Medium - Trust

Section: Variety containers

Current wording

"Different mint varieties will cross-pollinate ... and the flavor of hybrid offspring is often inferior." (mint-guide.html:2123)

Why it deserves review

This is a specific horticultural claim that needs verification and clearer relevance to current plants.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Verify the claim and what reader action it is meant to support.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Section: Repeated theme

Current wording

"hospitality in leaf form," "lemonade into hospitality," and repeated "slower pace" language (mint-guide.html:1835, 1968, 1928, 2399)

Why it deserves review

Repetition can make otherwise personal passages feel templated.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Let Stephanie choose the one expression that feels most like her and flag the rest for possible reduction.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Plum Guide - plum-guide.html

ER-030

Medium - Freshness

Section: Header and journey

Current wording

"By early June in Northern California" and "Start checking in early June" (plum-guide.html:1789, 1851)

Why it deserves review

The region is clear, but weather and variety change the timing; the observation may be a dated garden journal detail.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Decide whether Stephanie means a recurring regional guideline or a dated observation from her own tree.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-031

Medium - Trust

Section: FAQ

Current wording

"A mature, healthy plum tree can produce 50 to 100 pounds of fruit in a good season, sometimes more."
(plum-guide.html:2025)

Why it deserves review

The range depends on tree size, age, variety, climate, and source.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Verify the range and define the conditions Stephanie is comfortable presenting.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Section: Repeated theme

Current wording

"The season is short. Savor it well." and repeated variations of short/generous/savoring (plum-guide.html:1803, 1875)

Why it deserves review

The repetition may reduce the force of a strong seasonal idea.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Stephanie should select where the theme feels most authentic.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Rosemary Guide - rosemary-guide.html

ER-033

Medium - Trust

Section: Growing

Current wording

"one of the most self-sufficient plants you can put in a bar garden" (rosemary-guide.html:2093-2094)

Why it deserves review

This superlative depends heavily on climate, soil, and winter moisture.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Confirm the conditions under which Stephanie has found rosemary self-sufficient.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-034

Medium - Trust

Section: Cold-climate guidance

Current wording

"In zones 6 and below, rosemary needs help to survive winter" plus specific protection advice (rosemary-guide.html:2132)

Why it deserves review

The guidance is detailed and climate-sensitive.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Verify the zone guidance and distinguish Stephanie's experience from general recommendations.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-035

Medium - Trust

Section: Harvest timing

Current wording

"Morning rosemary is noticeably more fragrant" (rosemary-guide.html:2152-2153)

Why it deserves review

"Noticeably" states a sensory result as universal.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Confirm whether this is Stephanie's observation and whether supporting context is needed.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-036

Low - Voice

Section: Using rosemary in drinks

Current wording

"Rosemary has more uses at the bar than almost any other garden herb" (rosemary-guide.html:2235-2236)

Why it deserves review

The superlative is generic and difficult to substantiate.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Decide whether the claim adds anything beyond the specific uses that follow.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Lavender Guide - lavender-guide.html

ER-037

Medium - Voice

Section: Repeated theme

Current wording

"peace," "quiet," "calm," and "gentle" recur throughout the page (lavender-guide.html:1628-1771)

Why it deserves review

Repetition may make distinct personal moments feel formulaic.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Stephanie should identify which instances reflect her real associations with lavender.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-038

Medium - Opportunity

Section: From our garden

Current wording

"The bees always seem to know first." (lavender-guide.html:1717-1718)

Why it deserves review

This could be a strong lived observation if it is specific to Stephanie's garden.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Confirm the observation and decide whether she wants to add her own concrete context later.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-039

Medium - Trust

Section: Variety guidance

Current wording

"English lavender is the most graceful choice" and specific cultivar recommendations (lavender-guide.html:1821-1822)

Why it deserves review

"Most graceful" blends preference with culinary suitability.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Separate Stephanie's preference from any verified suitability guidance during owner review.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-040

Low - Voice

Section: FAQ - flavor

Current wording

"The goal is a drink that makes someone lean in and ask, 'What is that?'" (lavender-guide.html:1984)

Why it deserves review

The imagined reader response may sound composed rather than observed.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Stephanie should confirm whether this sounds like her and reflects an actual experience.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Lemon Balm Guide - lemon-balm-guide.html

High - Freshness

Section: From Our Garden / Around the Table

Current wording

"Right now, lemon balm is still new to us"; "Syrup is coming soon." (lemon-balm-guide.html:1943, 1953)

Why it deserves review

These statements expire and have no visible journal date or delivery target.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Decide whether to preserve them as a dated journal entry or update them after Stephanie confirms what happened.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

High - Trust

Section: Favorites

Current wording

"Canine Approved" and "Stella made sure lemon balm became part of the story too." (lemon-balm-guide.html:1964)

Why it deserves review

"Approved" could be read as a pet-safety endorsement rather than family storytelling.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Stephanie should confirm the event and remove any unintended safety implication during owner editing.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-043

Medium - Trust

Section: At a glance / FAQ

Current wording

"Hardy in zones 3-9 and reliable in many home gardens" (lemon-balm-guide.html:1978)

Why it deserves review

The hardiness and reliability claims need climate and source verification.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Verify the range and define the conditions the site intends to cover.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-044

Medium - Opportunity

Section: Personal story

Current wording

"Three Containers, Summer Evenings, and Stella" (lemon-balm-guide.html:1942-1943)

Why it deserves review

This is one of the site's most specific family passages and should be protected from unsupported embellishment.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Have Stephanie confirm the details and mark the passage as owner-approved in the future edit plan.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-045

Low - Clarity

Section: Saving the Season

Current wording

Future experiments are displayed as "Dry for Tea," "Freeze for Drinks," and "Make Syrup" cards
(lemon-balm-guide.html:1990-1994)

Why it deserves review

Readers may mistake ideas Stephanie has not tried for tested recommendations.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Preserve the honest learning status and make the experimental nature unmistakable if edited.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Thyme Guide - thyme-guide.html

ER-046

Medium - Trust

Section: FAQ - perennial range

Current wording

"persists year-round in zones 4 through 9" (thyme-guide.html:1962)

Why it deserves review

Winter behavior varies by cultivar, site, and climate.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Verify the range and clarify the conditions Stephanie can support.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-047

Medium - Trust

Section: FAQ - flowers

Current wording

"The flowers are completely edible and make excellent cocktail garnishes" (thyme-guide.html:2016)

Why it deserves review

Edibility depends on correct identification, treatment, and source.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Review the claim against the site's safety standards and Stephanie's actual practice.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Section: FAQ - spirit pairing

Current wording

"one of the most spirit-agnostic cocktail herbs" (thyme-guide.html:1980)

Why it deserves review

The phrase is technical and broad compared with the otherwise home-centered voice.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Stephanie should decide whether this sounds natural and useful to her audience.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

Basil Guide - basil-guide.html

High - Freshness

Section: Header and seasonal sections

Current wording

"By July," "By June," "By August," and "One sip tastes like late July" (basil-guide.html:1513, 1580, 1644, 2108)

Why it deserves review

These month-specific statements mix recurring guidance with personal seasonal observations.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Decide which are Northern California guidance, which are dated journal details, and which should be evergreen.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-050

Medium - Opportunity

Section: From our garden

Current wording

"picking basil with Sofia while Stella follows along" (basil-guide.html:1623, 2125)

Why it deserves review

The family detail is distinctive and should be owner-confirmed rather than generalized.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Stephanie should confirm the memory and decide where it belongs once.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-051

Medium - Trust

Section: From our garden

Current wording

"We usually grow about four basil plants" (basil-guide.html:1620-1621)

Why it deserves review

This is a specific current household practice.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Confirm that the number and growing setup are accurate for the intended season.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-052

Medium - Trust

Section: Supermarket basil tip

Current wording

"becomes 8 to 12 individual plants" and "a $3-4 nursery pot" (basil-guide.html:1798)

Why it deserves review

Seedling counts, prices, and outcomes vary and may age.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Verify Stephanie's actual result and remove or date market-specific detail if she chooses to edit.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss

Stephanie's notes

ER-053

Low - Trust

Section: FAQ - Basil Smash

Current wording

"invented by Hamburg bartender Joerg Meyer in 2008" (basil-guide.html:2172)

Why it deserves review

This external historical claim needs source verification.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Verify the attribution before retaining it in an owner-approved revision.

Blog Index - blog.html

High - Freshness

Section: Published post cards

Current wording

"what to plant right now"; "what's in season this week"; "Late May means..." (blog.html:1075-1104)

Why it deserves review

The cards are dated May 28, 2026, but their summaries still speak directly as current guidance.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Decide whether the dates provide enough journal context or whether summaries should make their historical season explicit.

High - Freshness

Section: Coming Soon cards

Current wording

Four cards are labeled "Coming Soon" (blog.html:1122-1155)

Why it deserves review

The promises have no target dates and can remain indefinitely.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Stephanie should confirm which posts are still planned and assign a date, retire the promise, or move it to an internal roadmap.

ER-056

Medium - Freshness

Section: Seasonal Harvest

Current wording

"The plums are ripe." (blog.html:1166-1168)

Why it deserves review

This current-state statement is not tied to a visible seasonal review date.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Treat it as a dated garden observation or place it under seasonal governance.

ER-057

Medium - Voice

Section: Summer Bourbon Smash card

Current wording

"this is the only drink you'll want to make" (blog.html:1133-1135)

Why it deserves review

The promotional absolute may not match the site's calm-confidence standard.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Stephanie should decide whether the exaggeration sounds like her.

Stephanie's notes

Section: HeaderCurrent wording

"the simple joys of slowing down and gathering around the table" (blog.html:1049-1053)

Why it deserves review

The phrase repeats broad brand language used elsewhere.

Suggested direction (not replacement copy)

Confirm whether the index needs a more specific editorial purpose when it is next revised.

☐ Keep as-is ☐ Revise later ☐ Remove later ☐ Discuss
